Encourage clients to book their Christmas temps now

Temp recruiters should encourage clients to book temps for the Christmas period now, according to recruiter Jody Fazldeen from Brisbane agency, Talentpath.

Booking temps now will help ensure that employers can cover staff absences and increased workloads over the Christmas period, and not worry about finding staff at the last minute.

Fazldeen says the skills shortage means companies are stepping up their recruitment efforts for the festive season, and examples of this include employers guaranteeing every applicant an interview, and making permanent offers quickly to ensure candidates take themselves off the market.
